whom we do acknowledge all faith and constant obedience, with all hearty and humble affection, beseeching God, by whom Kings and Queens do reign, to bless the royal prince, George V., with long and happy years to reign over us."

The new King, after this proclamation, will address the council and promise to reign as constitutional sovereign. At the conclusion of the meeting King George will issue his first proclamation, requiring all officials to proceed with their duties.

tion, requiring all officials to proceed with their duties.

The Aldermen of the city of London will attend the council and swear allegiance. A proclamation has already been issued by the Home Office requiring theatres to close to-day.

The court will go into mourning for six months, and the Lord Mayor has ordered that the great bell of St. Paul's shall be tolled throughout the day.

Became Heir to Throne When Brother, Duke of Clarence, Died.

George Frederick Ernest Albert, Prince of Wales, who now becomes King, is the second son of King Edward and Queen Alexandra, and was born at Mariborough House on June 3, 1865, seventeen months after the birth of his older brother, the late Duke of Clarence. He and his brother entered the navy together as cadets. Then he started on a three-year voyage around the world.

In 1892, when his brother died, he became heir apparent, and took his seat in the House of Lords, as Duke of York. He married Princess Victoria May, of Teck, on July 6, 1893. Six children were born to them. The prince became Duke of Cornwall when his father took the throne, and soon thereafter started on a tour of the colonies. He opened the first Parliament of the Commonwealth of Australia.

In the fall of 1805 he went to India, His India trip was generally regarded as not a success from a political viewpoint. ward and Oueen Alexandra, and was as not a success from a political view point.

In 1908 he visited Canada to attend the celebration of Quebec.

The prince is less democratic than was his father, and does not have such an ardent love for sports. It has been predicted, therefore, that after his accession to the throne, the court gaiety which was always a feature during Edward's reign, will be less marked.

Remarkable Christmas Present.

Among the curous Christmas presents of this year will be one for a man of national reputation, which has been all year in the making.

Way last January the present was decided upon, and a friend of the prominent gentleman requested the Burrelle Press Clipping Bureau, of New York, to watch every paper in America, and to take up every item which appeared concerning the man.

to watch every paper in America, and to take up every item which appeared concerning the man.

The clipping bureau people followed instructions, and now present the history of one year in the life of this especial man.

The history ends just after election, and the 20,642 newspaper items found include everything from a three-line editorial mention to full-page illustrated stories. These have been mounted on 3.200 great sheets of Irish linen paper and bound into three massive volumes.

At the head of each item is the name and date of paper clipped from, this information having been put in with a book typewriter. The words thus inserted amount to 153,852.

In actual time, a very strict record of which has been kept, the work has required sixty-four working days throughout the year, and has kept in employment during that time thirty people as readers, clippers, sorters, mounters and binders. Every newspaper of importance is represented.

This is merely a specimen of some of the unique orders which get into the Burrelle Bureau, for the extent to which clippings are used by individuals and by business concerns seems to be remarkable.

There are many people in private as well as in public life who need press clippings and don't know it. It might be well for them to look up this man Burrelle, who is said to be so well known that a letter simply addressed "Burrelle, New York," will reach him with no delay.
